Sexuality Education at Home: A Workshop for Parents

This highly interactive workshop will review the normal sexual development of children and provide tips for how to take advantage of "teachable moments." Parents will practice answering questions children might ask about sexuality and have an opportunity to clarify their values about issues related to sexuality and their children. Resources such as booklists, Web sites and hotlines will be distributed.

Who should attend: This presentation is for parents and other interested community members.

Cost: FREE - Registration not required.

Tuesday, September 14, 2010
SESSION II 8:30 a.m. - 4:00 p.m.

Continuing Education Units available!

Sexuality Education Basics: Strategies for Teaching Sexuality to high school and middle school students.

The purpose of this workshop is to provide participants with opportunities to learn about and practice basic teaching methodologies and techniques that work well for conducting sexuality education programs with young people.

What about the Boys?: Teaching sexuality accurately and effectively with boys.

The vast majority of sexuality education curricula and programs are created with the needs of girls in mind. This training will provide the most up-to-date information available about how boys learn, how co-ed sexuality education programming has failed boys and what educators can do to be sure to reach all students and workshop participants.

Who should attend? This presentation is for social service professionals, educators, nurses, school counselors, parents, and other professionals who work with youth.

Cost: $40 per person, includes continental breakfast and lunch. Seating is limited.
